Schoolchild. Some overal aims, such as the development of a child's literacy skills, are shared by all schools. However, the way in which these aims are achieved is the responsibility of the individual school. The school's curriculum, its teaching methods and its assessment procedures are all part of the school's unique identity. The school's ethos, its values and its vision are also part of its identity. The school's identity is what makes it a unique institution. The school's identity is what makes it a place where children can learn and grow.
